Dear Sirs,

As most of you are aware, the majority of ship repair yards in central region of China and some small private companies have been trying to carry out repairs to boilers over the recent years. Some of the repairs carried out to date could have resulted in disastrous consequences had it not been for the vigilance of our attending Surveyors.

We are fully aware that the yards and/or the smaller companies do not have the necessary experience or competence to undertake repairs of this nature.

Therefore, when you are presented with the situation where repairs are required to a main or auxiliary boiler, steam receiver or economiser (any pressure vessel containing steam or thermal oil, fired or unfired) then you are to request the services of one of the companies as per the attached listing, either through the Owner's representatives or through the shipyard.

Should any other company desire being added to this list then they will be required to go through our acceptance process prior to undertaking such work.

Under no circumstances are you to accept repairs being undertaken by companies not on this list.

Should you require any clarification on this issue, please do not hesitate to contact the undersigned.

Yours sincerely,

Jerry Souster
